to Muah Jia Pin. Killed a ~~small~~ bird - or rather wounded it. It dropped over a cliff. A farmer appeared and tried to catch it. I told him not to take by the tail, but he did, and all the tail feathers came out. I turned the bird loose. Another bird was shot to pieces and so was useless, but a third was secured in fine condition, a yellow one with black ~~feathers~~.

yellow bird with black.
Killed another bird - a ~~leopard~~ caught it by the tail and pulled all the feathers out, ~~spoiling~~.

Reached Li Juan Tsang.

Shot one bird yesterday with the shotgun and blew it to pieces, so that it was useless, another was wounded, but a Chinese caught it by the tail, and all the tail feathers came out. I turned the bird loose in the woods. At Li Juan Tsang killed a bird with bright blue bell, bright blue eyelids, and a brown tail with two long feathers and a body slightly bigger than a sparrow. Wing brownish red head shining black - probably a flycatcher. Went on 6 miles to near Jin went to Tong So Jin, about twelve miles south of near Jin Lehiao. Killed 3 heron, white, with yellow on necks and backs - one heron, white on breast, dark blue on back etc. Total of 6 birds. Found coolie did not put in any arsenic!! One brown bird probably a flycatcher - seemed an uncommon butterfly generally found on the leaves.

Went to Tsang Jin Shien. Very hot. Killed four birds only two useful.

First night up late with specimens and cleaning guns. Rained very hard during the night. Roads very bad in the morning, but made at least 35 miles. Afternoon hot. All arrived very tired at Shin' Gih Shin'. Killed another bird like bird no. 2. saw a lot of bird like bird no. 2. on an island. Wounded one but did not get it. Bird no. 30 new to my collection. Got a good many insects. Passed a robber district.

Travelled about 28 miles to Chongtu secured two birds that conceal themselves in the rice paddies.
Made preparations for the trip on to Songpan. Stayed at Joo Chanchai's.
Got Birds 33, 34, 35, 36, 37
Consul Ogden, English secured escort.
nos. 33, 37, 34, generally seen in rice paddies, 33 and 37 are hard to get.

British Consul Ogden sent a special paper requiring cooperation of Chinese officials. The escort was very slow coming, but when it came, not one of the soldiers had a gun or a sword, and there were 8 of them?
What use were they? At the city gates we were delayed an hour by the city police. Travelled eight miles. Secured four birds. All our party was still tired because of the rush trip from Kiating to Chongtu. Secured some good insects in the city of Chongtu 38-41

Today was a day to desicourge. The brave. Travelled over 28 miles to Kuan Shien, a large city where I knew no one. Escort was sent ahead to get a lodging place. He did not do so, and we found ourselves on the streets helpless. I went to the magistrate's and found he was from Suifu. He found a lodging for us, and arranged for our journey. His watching the city gate made trouble when we entered the city. My room was vermin ridden with poor air. One helper nearly raised a riot by unwise words while the loads were on the street and was seen by the magistrate.
I had to desicourge this helper because he is a bad man.

Crossed the Yangtze P'o or wild goat pass to Yin⁴ Shien⁴ wan, a small village. We had a hard time getting started. The coolies all worshipped the idol Er³ Jang² Jui² Jih, to insure a safe journey. The pass is about 2000 feet above sea level but very rough.
This town is about 3200 altitude. We killed 11 birds and secured a number of good insects.
We saw a caravan of aborigines camping. Killed birds 42-53.
This country is getting more and more like that around Tatsienlu.

I travelled about 20 miles, secured some fine insects. I forgot it was Sunday, or rather thought tomorrow was. Wild boar and a bear were seen across the river, and mountain goats or wild goats. Finally we saw three wild goats across the river. I raised the sights the first time, but overshot. Then I lowered the sights and still overshot. The third time Mr. goat came rolling down the steep cliff. I had to hire two men to cross the river on a rope bridge there being a single bamboo cable, cross a very wild and rough stretch of country to the goat and bring the goat to me. This delayed us so that we reached the tavern after dark. The goat is gray and weighed 48 lbs.

Killed birds 54 - 60

a hard day's trip. The road was rough. The country had a semi-arid appearance with few birds and insects, all were quite tired when we reached the inn.

Birds 61 - 63. No 61 was a cuckoo that I did not number. I thought themselves labelled. Got lots of interesting snails.

Travelled nearly 30 miles - a rather rough road. Semi-arid country. Killed birds but the tired skinners could not skin them all. Plenty of wasps and bees. Secured a small butterfly I'd never seen before. Killed 3 large swift swallows on the way.

Word has been received that Kweichow troops have come to the Yangtze River at Ho Kiang, between Suichow and Ichang, west of Ichang, to open hostilities against Szechuen. They fired on two steamers on the way up. During the next few weeks I shall probably continue to congratulate myself that the Szechuan catch has all gone down the river and will soon be safely out of China.

There are several kinds of small birds which I will probably not send specimens of in the future, since the Smithsonian Institution probably has all it wants.
		The hawk moth caught about April 12th is not uncommon in Szechuen. I have put it in a shoeblackening box, tin, for safety.
		May first, I started on a trip south of Snijna. I gave in charge of my coolie the box containing arsenic with instructions to send it along. He did not do so, and I did not find this out for several days, until the arsenic ran out. I had to purchase Chinese arsenic, which may be of inferior quality, and I fear the skins caught on that trip may reach the Smithsonian Institution in a damaged condition.

June 2nd, found the nest of an ant that I had been unable to find a nest of before with eggs &c. I did not find any winged ants, but found eggs. These ants have a bad stench that one does not care to experience a second time. They are black ants, and the specimens are in a small bottle.

July 1, saw a lot of birds. Of the kind numbered bird no 2 on an island, wounded one but it fell, the plane and we couldn't get it.

This first picture was a failure.

		On this day I probably ate my last meal in a white man's home until my return from Songpan.
		I took no coffee, tea, candy (except some chocolate), cookies, cake or the like with me, expecting to "live off the land" a good deal. I rode no horse and took no sedan chair, planning to cut expenses by footing it as much as possible.

		On this trip I had to practically run a dispensary every day to keep the coolies and helpers in condition.
	July 4th	- This was certainly a day ending in a nightmare, and one not familiar with things Chinese would have been up against it. My helper that was constantly making trouble with his tongue almost raised a riot by unwise words, which might have resulted in roughness or stealing our guns while my men were unprotected on the streets. My visit to the magistrate straightened things out for several days to come. A generous present to this official counted not a little in settling all these difficult matters. Such is life in West China and such is collecting here. But I am very glad to do it - in fact, I like to.

I had sent word to the cutter Ho to meet me at Lehigh but he did not do so, so I will have him met around Kuan Shien and Beh Luh Lin where there are many insects I have not yet caught.
During the corkie who rows so much leaves me short two collectors, but I'll aim to make up for it by using natives in the interior.

This morning I broke the best glasses I brought along with me.
I left them on the table. Probably a rat knocked them off onto the ground, and I stepped on them when I got up this morning.

My feet got sore today but there are no blisters so they will be all right tomorrow.

I left safely put away at home in Suifu most of the tools, the newest double barreled shotgun, fully half the collecting outfit, and most of the ammunition.
This was 1, to ~~save~~ expenses on this trip everywhere possible 2, so that even if the whole outfit I have with me were lost I would be able to go right on collecting. I also left the automatic 22 rifle at home bringing another higher power small rifle of my own instead.

We start every day at daybreak and sometimes are up until eleven o'clock or later at night taking care of specimens. This means that we generally get too little sleep while travelling.

should be a much longer time for the trip, but I will do everything we can. I think we will secure specimens not found in other parts of Zechuan. This is probably the loneliest collecting trip I shall take, for I shall probably not see another foreigner until I reach Lehington. July 10, small birds 75-78 were noisy but hid in low underbrush. Form: Lehengtu to Songham is a rich district for collecting. One wishes he had years in which to do it. White bear and all kinds of animals are reported. This visit is very safe this year so it is well that this trip was taken. The trip might be impossible next year, and for some time afterwards. However these foreigners were murdered last year by robbers, and the officials were punished, so that the officials are unwilling for a foreigner to go where there is any danger. The Songham magistrate forbids travelling westward or northward but permitted travelling one day eastward where collecting should be very good. The City of Songham has very little vegetation excepting for heat fields. So it would not be profitable to stay here long and collect, es- pecially since the officials do not want us to go far away from the City. Next year it might be impossible to come at all. The local official is anxious for me to clear out of this district.

If anything happens he will be held responsible. This is bound to shorten my stay at Songpan. Some of the Chinese at Songpan use prayer flags on their houses like the Lamasists of Tibet and the neighboring aborigines. I saw a Chinese boy whom the parents wished to protect from evil influences especially demons that cause disease and death, on whose back the parents had a brass mirror, a brass coin, and a small bag in which some parts of the Buddhist classics were placed.

July 17.			The local magistrate tried to get me to make my stay in this district quite short. It was with some difficulty that I secured a longer time in which to collect at Huang Song Si — I hope to find ways of delaying long enough to get a reasonably amount of collecting done. The official will not let me leave the main road along the river for the higher elevations where mammals and different kinds of birds may be found. July 18, at Huang Song Si. There should be plenty of game. The official would not let me come here without an escort of six soldiers.

July 22. Bad luck - I recovered two pounds of gunpowder from the abakmal at Lehigh for this trip, but it is false powder and will not explode. This will leave us short of ammunition for small birds.

July 23. We have searched in every direction and find that this is such a poor place for large birds and for mammals that we are going to spend a couple of days at the City of Loughan, then move towards Lehigh where we should credit that there is much more favorable for large birds and mammals, we have a good catch of small birds and of small birds. If we could go west or north of Loughan, we would find plenty of large birds and mammals, but the Hah Shui Bolotsis, aborigines, are such big game that the officials will not permit us to travel in those directions. Leaves, twigs, and logs are being rapidly covered up. The mineral substance when deposited becomes a bright yellow stone, so that the bed of the stream is a bright yellow color. The water flows slowest at the edge of the stream and there deposits its mineral, so that it tends to build banks to the stream. In many places the stream is from five to thirty feet above the surrounding ground or rock, and the lower elevations are generally old beds of the stream that have been deserted. Probably the stream builds itself higher and higher above the neighboring soil or rocks until, in some places, it breaks over its banks and seeks the lower level, which is for a time the stream bed, and which is gradually built up by the mineral deposit until in turn it is higher than the last bed that it has left. I am sending samples of the yellow stone, some with leaf or twig imprints. (See page 265)

STATION.	DATE.	BRIDEGROOM.	BRIDE.	REMARKS.
				Leaves, twigs, and logs are rapidly becoming covered up with the deposit which becomes yellow stone.
				Because of the abundance of this yellow stone the natives believe that a yellow dragon god lives in this gorge. Chinese and foreigners unite in worship. There are some very interesting things for one who is interested in the religious side of anthropology.
				One reason that the officials of Lanchow do not want anyone collecting mammals or insects is that they are devout Buddhists and believe in the transmigration of souls. It is about as bad to them to kill an animal, bird, or insect as it would be to kill a human being. However, it is really dangerous on account of the aborigine brigands to go north or west of Songhan, where, by the way, is the best hunting.

Ants. There are two small varieties that I have noticed that go up to about 14000 feet. There is a large red ant found in Szechuen between the altitudes of 6000 and 11000 ft. The most common large black ant of Szechuen (central) is found below the level of 6000 feet but not above. Question, do these two ants fight each other so that they can not live in the same territory, or do they simply seek different levels?

Insects above 7500 feet often are found under stones but not often in the lower levels in Szechuen. Evidently they find under the stones some protection from the cold. I did not find the wild small reddish turtle dove that I found at Tatsienlu.
The escorts are a great problem. Without them the officials will not be responsible for your safety. If you pay them too little, they report to the magistrate. Sometimes they report that you have not paid what you should when you have to get the official to give them more money, but it hurts your reputation.

NAME.	DATE OF VISIT	TIME SPENT AT STATION.	REMARKS.
There is more roughing it on this trip for me than on any previous trip. I have walked every step since leaving Lehengtu. I probably will not see another foreigner until I return to Lehengtu. I have not eaten cake since leaving Lehengtu and the only cookies I have had were some punk Chinese cookies bought on the street. I eat bread only about one meal a day - can't get any here that is less tough than leather (it is unleavened). It takes me till late at night sometimes to take care of the specimens caught during the day.

NAME.	DATE OF VISIT	TIME SPENT AT STATION.	REMARKS.
My Chinese helpers have worked mighty hard on this trip. It is hard on the skinners to walk 20 to 30 miles, then spend part of the night skinning birds. The netter often does not get enough sleep because of catching moths. All these helpers walk all the time unless they are sick. The loyalty of these Chinese helpers and the willingness to work hard will mean much in making this trip a success if it proves a success. All these helpers I have trained myself.

I saw at Tieh Chi, altitude about 6000 feet, the large kingfisher of which I have sent samples from central Szechuen. I did not get a shot at it.

In the region of Longshan and Mowchow, and between, all the rock is lava - no limestone or sandstone - excepting the yellow stone deposited by the water in Yellow Dragon Gorge.

Above Mowchow at a level of about 6000 feet I saw both the large red ant and the large black ant on the same ground. They did not seem to be at war. This makes it seem probable to me that they do not fight but simply seek naturally sub different levels.

The drowning of the coolie carrier was unavoidable. The stream was swift and swollen. The bridge was three logs tied together with pieces of vine, probably. These were rotten and gave way when the carrier tried to cross. I heard his cry for help, saw him floating rapidly down the swollen mountain stream. This was just above the village. We ran below the village and tried to head him off, but the only thing we found was a piece of the paper work he used for carrying things on his back. This makes a sad ending for the day. No trace has been found of our things. These mountain streams can only be appreciated after one has seen them. Many of them are roaring torrents, especially in high water. The coolie had parents, wife, and children. I had healed his feet of bad stone bruises and we liked each other. The wasi aborigines have been brought to this territory by the Chinese from towards Tibet and placed in the midst of the Lichiang aborigines to balance the power of the Lichiang and make them more easily governed. They have absorbed more of the social and religious customs of the Chinese than the Lichiang, who have refused to absorb or be absorbed, and resemble the Chinese more closely. Aug 8. The accident yesterday was entirely unavoidable on our part. The blame is entirely on the part of those who look after that bridge for not replacing rotten things.

The pieces of skull and the jawbone secured above Wen Lehuan are probably of two individuals. Mr. Lawrence, D.R.S. thinks they are of the Sui dynasty, at least 1000 years old. He thinks they were mummified. The skin and flesh did not rot but dried on the bodies. Mr. Lawrence sent a specimen of a hand to the British Museum. This is a very dry spot, and either they were mummified or else they dried up instead of rotting. The coffins, well preserved, are of wood, there is no mark or inscription of any kind to indicate the age of the specimens. The bodies were intact when first discovered several years ago but the natives have broken them to pieces with stones. I would like to know what Mr. Hedlicka finds about these bones. Are they Mongolian, Aryan, or aboriginal in type?

Mammals I do not consider my summer's catch of mammals an outstanding success. Near Suiyuan we were not allowed to go where mammals were plentiful, where we went, a great festival which had included hunting had driven the large mammals away, and nearly cleaned out the pheasants. Near Wen Lehuan there are large mammals, including a white and a black bear, and a long-haired monkey or ape, but every native is a hunter and the animals are exceedingly wild. I used to trap when a boy, but there are special things to learn about trapping in West China, and I am beginning to learn some of them. It might pay for me to train a native trapper and hire him throughout the year, taking him with me on these trips, for trapping takes time, and one of my problems is to get as much as possible done in a comparatively short time. If allowed to use money a little liberally I can hire native hunters and considerably increase my catch of large mammals. Aug 15, I was just getting into the swing of securing mammals when I left for Suifu. A month spent here in winter time ought to give excellent results.

Wilson, the great naturalist who spent eleven years in West China, had with him part of the time a naturalist who spent his whole time trapping mammals. People who knew him say that he had a great deal of trouble and lost lots of traps. The Chinese would continually steal his traps. He was constantly provoked by this sort of thing. Some of us who live in China and sometimes inclined to think that "Honest John Chinaman" is a literary fiction, more legendary than real.

It will be some relief of mind when I get to Suifu with my collecting outfit and specimens. Brigands, petty thieves, moid, rust, 'wreckage' by carniere, and wreckage of boats are some of the possible sources of loss. Last night a thief broke into a foreign compound in Kiaoting, probably hoping that he might secure the Smithsonian guns which I had taken to the house where I spent the night.

After losing my folding cot when the coolie was drowned near Nees Chuan, I spread my blankets on flat boards. It would not do to use Chinese beds, on account of the fleas, bedbugs and lice.

It is about as much work caring for the specimens, labelling them, packing them &c as it is to collect the specimens. Under caring for the specimens I would include drying, wrapping, &c.

	It was a wise thing to take the Songhan trip. It might be several years before that road is again as free from brigands as it is this year, and before the trip is again possible because there is no civil war in Szechuen. Now that the mission has asked me to go to Ningyuen next spring, it is certain that I could not go to Songhan next year, although I could go to Moupin, probably. The Washan trip could be taken practically any year so that it may well

Sept. 18th	Already the warclouds are gathering over Iching, and there are rumors that the thunders of war will soon be heard in Szechuen. If there had been similar conditions during the summer I could not have gone to Longpan. I have hurried up the packing and shipping of specimens, and today the last box of specimens has gone off by parcel post. Here's hoping that they all get safely out of Iching before the Yangtze River becomes closed to steamer traffic, and that none of the fifty boxes of specimens are lost or injured.
